Fed Confirms Market's Hopes, But There's a Catch

This week's policy announcement from the Federal Reserve (aka "The Fed") was hotly anticipated. In the past month and a half, traders have rapidly upped their bets on multiple Fed rate cuts in 2019 as trade tensions flared. Softer economic data only added fuel to the fire.

In other words, markets think they see a reason for a big shift in Fed policy and this was the Fed's first official policy announcement since the most recent bout of drama began.

Why is the Fed's take so important? Simply put, Fed policy is a critical component underlying global market movement. It's not that the Fed can dictate long-term market trends, but they can definitely accelerate or delay existing trends, and create a ton of volatility in the process.

This is more true in the interest rate world than anywhere else. In fact, Market expectations for Fed rate changes tend to trace day to day movements in actual interest rates. This can be seen in the following chart of 10yr Treasury Yields and Fed Funds Futures (where speculators bet on changes in the Fed Funds Rate).

Rates vs Fed Expectations

National Average Mortgage Rates

Recent Housing Data

		Value	Change
Mortgage Apps	Oct 21	195	+3.39%
Building Permits	Sep	1.4M	+0.43%
Housing Starts	Sep	1.22M	-4.24%
New Home Sales	Sep	676K	-1.17%
Pending Home Sales	Aug	71.2	0%
Existing Home Sales	Oct	3.99M	+0.25%
Builder Confidence	Oct	29	-9.38%

The chart shows rates falling on Fed day only to bounce back to pre-Fed levels by the end of the week. This tells us the Fed did a pretty good job of confirming rate cut suspicions without sending markets into a panic.

This is true for stocks as well as bonds. Both sides of the market enjoy the promise of easier monetary policy from central banks in the event any economic weakness takes root. The European Central Bank (ECB) proved that concept a day before the Fed as ECB President Draghi said that additional stimulus and rate cuts were likely. In both cases, the market reaction is obvious.

Rates vs Stocks

The housing market also has an obvious appreciation for lower rates, but with a far slower reaction time. While we can see the broader decline in rates having a positive impact on home sales so far in 2019, we can only speculate as to additional gains that may follow if the average 30yr fixed rate continues to operate below 4%.

Existing Home Sales

So what's "the catch" mentioned in the title? If there's one key takeaway from this week's Fed announcement and the broader decline in rates in 2019, it's that we should expect additional volatility ahead. In the past, when 10yr Treasury yields (the best benchmark for momentum in longer-term rates like mortgages) make big moves down to 2.0%, we tend to see the next .30% follow quite quickly (often in both directions).

US 10YR

Bottom line: by confirming the market's hopes for potential rate cuts, the Fed is also confirming a high stakes game. The major economic reports in the first week of July will be especially important as they'll have a chance to justify or cast doubt on the massive shift in rate cut expectations. Volatility would only be compounded by the fact that markets are closed on Thursday for Independence Day. There's no way to know ahead of time which way rates would move, only that they could move quickly.

Until then, enjoy the fact that rates are now back inside the decades-long bull market that was apparently defeated in 2018 (same diagonal lines from the chart above):

About Your Los Angeles Mortgage Broker

Shannon's expertise in residential mortgage lending spans more than 20 years. Beginning on the ground floor of the wholesale side of lending, Shannon subsequently succeeded as a loan officer, account manager, and account executive while working for one of the nation's largest mortgage lenders. In contrast to those who chose to leave the mortgage industry when the Los Angeles housing market began to spiral in 2008; Shannon's passion for helping others to become homeowners remained firmly intact. In fact the changes in the market and new lending laws made her want to help homebuyers to navigate the new rules of real estate lending more than ever. As such, she chose to transition to the retail side of real estate financing in effort to work closer with families, veterans, and those who had previous financial hardships to achieve their goals of home ownership. As a homeowner and real estate investor, Shannon's personal experience in obtaining mortgage loans for her own purchases is extensive. She has bought and sold multiple properties and continues to invest in real estate throughout Los Angeles County. Shannon's specialization and breadth of experience in real estate purchase loans enables her to offer standard/conventional loans, government loans, hard money loans, and specialty/portfolio products.
